DESCRIPTION

This NASW-IA sponsored, comprehensive 14-hour workshop addresses the most critical issues for the clinical supervisor in social work. Key concepts covered include models of supervision, individual versus group supervision, professional conduct and ethical issues in supervision, parallel process and leadership. In addition, current research looking at supervision is presented.

Through presentation, large group and small group discussions, the following aspects of supervision will be explored in this training:

1. The purpose, role, and functions of supervision;
2. Theories and models of supervision;
3. Oversight and guidance of supervisees who diagnose, create treatment plans, and treat clients;
4. Individual and group supervision facilitation;
5. Parallel process and the importance of modeling strengths-based principles in supervision;
6. Ethical issues that arise in supervision;
7. Cross-cultural supervision practices;
8. A review of recent literature regarding the practice of supervision in social work.

Your workshop fee includes a binder full of handouts and valuable information that you can refer to again and again!

*Minimum Attendance Required: There must be 20 attendees in order for the workshop to proceed.
